

NO TRESPASSING NOTICE

My property extends to the middle of the road and PennDOT, the County and the Township have a limited right of way for transportation of vehicles on the road and maintenance of the road surface. Use of the road on my property for seismic testing is not included in the transportation and maintenance right of way held by PennDOT, the County or the Township. Neither the Pennsylvania Department of Transportation (PennDOT), the County, nor the Township has any right to give permission to any party, nor does any party have a right to trespass upon my property, to obtain seismic data from my land without my permission.

Seismic testing from this road that is directed downward or outward under my property may damage my property including any wells or other structures installed on my property. Such testing also would collect data from my property without my permission and is a violation of my property rights and a trespass. Any data collected from my property is part of my property rights and cannot be used or sold without my express written permission obtained in advance of any data collection or testing activity.

I will pursue and enforce my property rights against any party attempting to perform seismic testing and data collection on my property and against any party, including PennDOT, the County or the Township purporting to give permission or approval to any party seeking to perform seismic testing and data collection on my property. In any lawsuit that may be filed to protect my property rights, along with other appropriate relief, I will request the court to order that 1) the defendant(s) immediately deliver all copies of any data to the court pending the resolution of this lawsuit, 2) the defendant(s) are barred from using or transferring to any other party any of the data collected from my property, and 3) the defendant(s), at their sole expense, must fully repair or replace any damaged wells, structures or other portions of my property.
